

Daddy's Little Girl

A monologue by Dennis Bush

Selected from his collection,

“Life and Death, Laughter and Love”

Cast: 1 female

Length: 3 pages of dialogue (582 words)

Performance time: About 4 minutes

The Story

Meredith, a young woman, flies home to visit her father who is battling cancer. They talk about their common love, baseball, all day. Once back home, she begins to call her parents almost daily and is told not to worry—until one call when he father urges her to go out to dinner and think of him. He dies that night with a picture of her in his hand and a baseball game playing on TV. (drama)

Performance Rights

This skit may be used by the original purchaser only.
It may not be reprinted, given, loaned, or sold to anyone else.
For further rights information, please contact the publisher.

ELDRIDGE PUBLISHING COMPANY

Download your copy today from Eldridge Publishing

<https://histage.com/daddys-little-girl>

Daddy's Little Girl

(29, Daddy's little girl, was a tomboy growing up.)

His said that he didn't want me to worry. He was the one who had just been diagnosed with cancer, and he didn't want me to worry. It had been almost a year since I'd seen him — I'd been living in California since I took the job at McKesson and he didn't like to travel. My mom had been out to visit, but dad couldn't be persuaded to get on a plane or sit in a car for that many hours no matter how much we tried.

I offered to fly back as soon as I heard he was sick. But he told me that was silly. I remember the lilting tone in his voice when he said, "Now, Meredith, don't be silly. You're busy with whatever it is that you're always busy with and I'm going to be fine, anyway, so there's no reason for you to come home and make everybody think this is worse than it is."

So, I didn't go see him. Not right away, at least. I called every couple of days and my mother usually gave me a whispered update on dad's condition. If he overheard her telling me anything too serious, I could hear him yelling in the background, "For God's sake, Joan, you'll have her a nervous wreck. Tell her I'm fine and there's nothing for her to worry about."

End of Freeview

Download your complete script from Eldridge Publishing
<https://histage.com/daddys-little-girl>

Eldridge Publishing, a leading drama play publisher since 1906, offers more than a thousand full-length plays, one-act plays, melodramas, holiday plays, religious plays, children's theatre plays and musicals of all kinds.

For more than a hundred years, our family-owned business has had the privilege of publishing some of the finest playwrights, allowing their work to come alive on stages worldwide.

We look forward to being a part of your next theatrical production.

Eldridge Publishing... for the start of your theatre experience!