DEDICATION

"The Tooth Fairy's Daughter" and the straight play version, "The Faerie King's Daughter," are dedicated to the memory of Jared Nathan, a wonderful young man who originated the role of "Max," bringing life and love to the role as well as everyone around him.

STORY OF THE PLAY

So you don't believe in Fairies, huh? What if there really was an invisible world right next to ours. A world where magical beings are not limited by gravity and yet still hampered with some of the emotional quirks and limits of Humans.

Come with us to the Fairy World of Findbhera and we'll tell you the story of Katie, daughter of the king of the Tooth Fairies, and Max, a personable young man whose consuming passion is that of flight. When not working or caring for his sister Em, Max is either taking flying lessons or flying kites in the park. One day while out exploring the Human world, Katie meets Max, but their friendship is short-lived. Katie must be present at the fairies' Centennial celebration where there could be trouble.

Findbharr, the king of the Tooth Fairies, has granted a "boon" or gift to Angor, the leader of the Trolls, in exchange for the Trolls stopping the practice of kidnapping orphaned Human children for servants. As his boon, Angor demands that Katie be their servant until the next Centennial, one hundred years away.

To repudiate this boon would result in such a loss of honor that the Tooth Fairy troop would be disbanded. Findbharr is ready to refuse, even at this cost, when Katie valiantly chooses to go. She sends her two best friends to tell Max, but he convinces them to take him and his sister to Troll Mountain. There they rescue Katie and discover a key piece of information that changes everything.

With beautiful music, humor, suspense and even the magical opportunity to let the characters fly, this is a musical intended for adults as well as the children they bring to the theatre.

Originally produced by the Bell Center Players at the Rochester Opera House, Rochester, NH.

EXTRA FAIRIES AND TROLLS: Any number of gender-neutral characters dressed in a wild assortment of colors and textures. Fairies can look much like Humans. There are four major hierarchies of Fairies: Earth, Air, Water, and Fire. Each hierarchy in some way reflects the animals and portions of the Earth that they are responsible for. Trolls are of the Earth hierarchy and may resemble the animals that live within the Earth.

EXTRA EARTH CHILDREN: For city park scene.

TIME: Now.

(OPTIONAL) FLYING THE ACTORS: There are several occasions where flying the characters will benefit the story. All that is necessary is for the character to rise into the air and come down. A very simple OSHA harness and pulley will accomplish this.

Performance time: Approximately 1 hour and 40 minutes.

Pronunciation key

Findbharr – as in wind and bar

Premies – as in Aunt Em

Angor – accent on first syllable and gor as in more
